Summary:

Current life we are facing a lots of fact of violence, media is full of news about violence in Europe and around the world. The Europe becoming less and less safe place to live. Many of the violence are based of prejudices and facts of violence creates new prejudices, which affects young people in our community. We strongly believe that young people have the power to break prejudice, promote non-violent actions and become ambassadors of peace. We decided to promote this project because different forms of conflicts are often closely interrelated, young people affected by conflicts whether on international, national or on local level very often develop xenophobic and racist attitudes that can lead to aggression and violence towards other ethnicity, people of other nationalities, or just any type of minorities. Simply, chauvinism, racism and discrimination combined with violence and life threatening acts towards minority groups create the need to look for effective strategies to address issues of conflict and violence among young people. This violence is often directed against refugees who fled to Europe. Extreme right-wing or national conservative groups in many European countries want to prevent a multi-ethnic society.

Project activities

Training course, local or national activities planned and conducted by the participants in their countries and the seminar.

Objectives

- Deepen participants' understanding of key concepts of conflict management and peace-building and non-violent actions;
- Familiarize the participants with concepts and approaches of non-violent actions i.e. how to use it best and adapt it to local contexts and realities in order to promote peace building;
- Motivate participants to promote peace and advocate non-violent actions and to understand the reasons for people who fight against refugees.
- Review and enhance participants' competences (knowledge, skills, attitudes) in working as activists, multipliers and youth workers on peace building using non-formal education tools;
- Enable participants to develop activities and programs for training multipliers in conflict transformation and non-violent actions, at international, national or local level.
- Evaluate the effectiveness of the different actions, activities and programs undertaken
- Develop learning from the evaluation process to implement in future projects
